The local stock company is booked for a long summer season in Buffalo, N. Y., be "The Sorrows of Satan" is to play a re turn engagement at the Park the last half of next week, beginning Thursday after-

The matinee this afternoon and to-night's performance will be the last opportunities to witness the smooth performance which the stock company is giving of "The New Magdalen" at the Grand this week.

The engagement of Miaco's City Club Burlesquers closes at the Empire Theater to-night. The next attraction at this house is Vanity Fair, which comes Monday.

Miss Donico will wear in "Camille" at the Grand next week a handsome lace dress which has been a highly prized possession in her family for many years. The garment was worn by her mother when a

"Three Little Lambs," a musical comedy of the big kind that always draws and entertains large audiences at English's Opera House, will be the last attraction at that theater next week. The engagement is for Friday and Saturday nights and a matinee

Next Monday night at the Grand the la dies will be permitted to make their own selections of souvenir photographs of the members of the stock company, and the pictures chosen will be delivered the folowing Monday night.

"Three of a Kind," a farce-comedy from the pen of E. E. Kidder, will occupy the Park Theater the first three days of next week. Mr. Kidder's productions have been exploited by Sol Smith Russell and other equally eminent comedians.

Patrons of the Grand last season will best pieces of work in "Camille." It is likely that the announcement of a revival o'clock in the evening. of this popular emotional play for next week will attract a series of the largest audiences that house has known the pres-

He | idence on East Merrill street Thursday will be seen in an entirely new play, "An Indiana Romance," at English's Opera House next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, also at a matinee Wednesday.

The Behman Show at the Park has been subjected to numerous changes which have resulted in making the performances better, if possible, than earlier in the week, Fred Niblo's monologue is almost entirely new; Yorke and Adams are singing different songs and perpetrating fresh jokes: the Cohans are making a big hit with George M. Cohan's new farcical skit, "The Governor's Son." and altogether the entertainment afforded is one that should not be missed.

A VIENNESE VISITOR.

Dr. Carl Chiara, a Cousin of Sculptor Schwartz, in the City.

Dr. Carl Chiarl, a blonde young man of twenty-five, whose home is in far-away Austria, was at the Bates Hotel yesterday afternoon for a short time. He arrived about the middle of the afternoon from Cincinnati and immediately inquired for Rudolph Schwartz, the sculptor, who reides on East Washington street. Dr. Chiari said Mr. Schwartz was a second cousin and years ago they lived together in Austria. Dr. Chiari is a chemist and is connected with the University of Vienna. He speaks English with considerable diffleulty. He said he was delighted with America, as all foreigners are. He was directed to the home of Mr. Schwartz and started there with the intention of surprising the sculptor, who, he said, had not been apprised of his visit to the United

DIRECTOR CLELAND.

The School Board Is Only Interested, He Says, in Liquor Dispensaries Having Licenses.

It is denied that the School Board was responsible for the numerous indictments being procured against druggists on a charge of illegally selling liquor. In stating the board's position in this matter Business Director Cleland yesterday said:

"The money paid for county liquor licenses goes to the credit of the county schools, the Indianapolis schools receiving about 85 per cent. On the representation of many citizens that a large number of people were doing a saloon business without the necessary preliminary of securing a license, the School Board appointed an inspector to investigate the matter, with a view to increasing the revenues of the board. The board had no purpose of starting a temperance or moral crusade, but only to secure funds due under the law from evaders of the law.

"The inspector was not employed as a detective and was given no instructions to act in that capacity. I wish to disclaim the statement that all the late indictments are the result of the efforts of the School Board. The School Board is interested in that several parties have been securing evidence for prosecutions, and so far as I know the one man employed by the board has not been the prosecuting witness in tives. The young couple will live at Alexthe late indictments. The auditor says that andria. license fees have been coming in more promptly than usual."

THE GAMES BETWEEN ONEIDAS AND NONPAREILS.

The Oneidas Win Two of the Contests -The Apollos Win Three-Individual Scores.

The first game between the Oneidas and Nonpareils last night was exciting and at the end of the tenth frame the two teams were tied. In the extra inning the Oneidas rolled a score of 102, while their opponents could only pile up 83. The Oneidas duplicated their score in the second game and won, but in the third contest the Nonparells carried off the victory because of the poor work of the champions. The Apollos took three straight from the Orientals and in the second game but one pin separated the two scores, with the Apollos having the advantage. The Stone Palace team took two of the three games from the Centrals. The individual scores were as follows:

For wooden block payement and curbing Three Boys Hold Up a Lad and Relieve Him of His Money.

> Thomas Finley, Fred Otto and Thomas Mullen, three young boys, were arrested early this morning for holding up another boy on West Washington street and relieving him of a small amount of money. Terry Moore, who is now doing watchman duty, saw the act and reported the matter to Patroimen Lawler and Barmfuhrer, who located the boys and arrested them. The three were identified by the lad who lost the money.

But it is ignorance only that laughs at the sphinxes, winged bulls, pinioned lions, hawkheaded men and many-breasted women that fill the ruins of palace and temple. This was the striving of the heathen mind to express its ideal of the Deity. The patient scholarship of to-day has put the key of ancient mythology in our hands, and we can recognize everywhere the symbols of the attributes, powers and deeds of the Deity. In spite of all the boldness of its striving, however, its earnestness and the infiniteness of its patience, we are compelled, even in the presence of its masterpieces, to pronounce that word "failure," for no image graven by art or man's device can show forth pret to us the spiritual; but this insatiable desire festation of the Deity-a desire which expressed itself in infinite and painful, but unsuccessful, striving, at length had its satisfaction; not in a chiseled colossus, not in an image of ivory and gold, not in cold and breathless marble, but in a throbbing, loving human heart.

> nearnation. As in the writings of St. Paul the doctrine of justification by faith is pre-eminent, and in the Epistle of James the Just the genuineness of faith certified by good works is conspicuous, so the chief teaching of John is that the Lord was made flesh. John lays it down as the infallible test of a teacher's soundness that he shall confess that Jesus Christ hath come "Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God." The incarnation is presumably true. The loving Father will satisfy the aspiraself. That manifestation will occur at the earliest possible date in the history of the race, when advantage. No form better suited to accomplish the end desired can be imagined than that which was taken. The Man Christ Jesus exemplified the moral qualities which are essential to the highest type of manhood. Assuming that Jesus was an honest and competent witness, we have in His own declarations the evidence of the reality of the incarnation. "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father." "Jesus answered, and said unto him. If a man love me, he will keep my words; and my Father will love him, and we will come unto Him, and make our abode with Him." "My Father worketh, and I work." "That all should honor the Son, even as they honor the Father." "Before Abraham was, I am." "I am that bread of life which came issue another weekly paper called the Hornet. The paper will be nonpartisan and will treat of politics only in a general way. It will be devoted to the colored people. The state fee and salary commission will recommend to the next Legislature that the salary of the Governor be increased from $5,000 to $8,000 a year, and that the appropriation for the salary be made separately without reference to the salaries of the other state officers. The increase will not affect the salary of the present Governor. The Independent Turnverein will give, on Wednesday next, March 28, at 8 p. m., a gymnastic exhibition of the young ladies' class, the junior class and the active class at the society's hall, corner Illinois and Chio streets. Members and their friends, also all friends of gymnastics, are invited to attend and witness the advancement made by the classes.

A report that the American Blcycle Company chain works was to be closed, which grew out of the release of a few employes, is without foundation. The factory has been running above its capacity on account of some big contracts, and the extramen were not needed. Nearly three hundred men are employed and the concern is making about 3,300 chains a day.

County Treasurer Koehne has the receipts ready to hand out to taxpayers who are entitled to mortgage exemption under the new law, when taxpaying time comes. There are 16,000 exemptions in this county, representing $90,000 worth of property that has heretofore been taxable. The additional amount of work in handling the exemption receipts will require almost twice as much time as under the old law. A plan has been agreed upon by the Charity Organization Society and the police by which it is hoped to rid the city of the increasing number of professional beggars. All cases are to be reported by the police to the Charity Organization, and beggars will be furnished with something to do, so that it will make them at least partially self-supporting. The plan is proving very successful, as the majority of the beggars are professionals and will leave the city before they will work. Several cases that have been investigated of late have turned out to be frauds.

Topic for March 25: The Glory of Obedience-Matt. xxi, 28-32.

There are some old-fashioned obediences that ought to come in vogue again, and one of them is the obedience to parents taught in our week's Bible lesson. If a parent was not obeyed, it was probably his fault first; nay, his sin. For it is a parent's duty to make himself obeyed. He stands in the place of God to the child that cannot yet apprehend God, and if the baby does not obey father and mother, the man will almost certainly rebel against the divine Father. But it is the child's sin also. Even the worsttaught child has enough conscience to show him that he should obey his parents. What he owes them in money he will not repay; what he owes them in loving sacrifice he cannot. Their wish, save when it opposes the divine will, should be his law and his joy. Alas, how many children obey only when they have a mind to! But the

No one can overestimate the value of the training of obedience afforded by the Christian Endeavor pledge. It is teaching nearly four million young folks the great word, "ought." It is teaching them to put duty before inclination. Conscience is the spring of obedience, and the Christian Endeavor pledge has made many con-Yet, still, among Endeavorers as well as every-

PARIS, March 23 .- In the Chamber of Deputies to-day the Nationalists assailed the government, aiming particularly at the minister of commerce, M. Millerand, in two interpellations. One treated of the question of the two rival chambers of the French commerce at Brussels. The other had to do with the granting of a decoration to M. Paquin, a well-known Paris dressmaker, the introducer of the interpollation insinuating that the honor had been paid for. The first fell through after a satisfactory response from the minister of foreign affairs, M. Delcasse, and the result of the second was a victory for the government by 271 votes against 226.
